PAE to Provide COVID-19 Testing Services for the NCAA Southeastern Conference

September 23, 2020

FALLS CHURCH, Va., Sept. 23, 2020 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- PAE (NASDAQ: PAE, PAEWW), a global leader in delivering smart solutions to the U.S. government and its allies, was chosen by the Southeastern Conference of the National Collegiate Athletic Association to provide COVID-19 testing services for in-season fall sports at its 14 university locations. Teaming with Premier Medical Group, PAE will deploy trained and ready test teams to each campus for testing and related logistics to support the safe execution of football, soccer, volleyball and other scheduled sports through December 2020 with an option to extend services for playoffs and bowl games.

PAE’s experience in complex project management and operational logistics is key to meeting the SEC’s need for a COVID-19 test provider. Having served on the front lines of the Ebola crisis in Liberia, PAE has the skills, knowledge and capabilities to respond effectively to the current pandemic.

President and CEO John Heller said PAE will provide expertise acquired supporting other infectious disease outbreaks on the SEC contract. Notably, the company mobilized and supported Ebola treatment units and a field hospital in Liberia for USAID in 2014 and 2015. PAE’s expeditionary skillset will be applied to deploying and managing testing services across the SEC.

“Having quickly responded to COVID-19 for customers that include the state of Georgia, we are well positioned to provide critical support to the SEC,” Heller said. “Our talented workforce will apply expertise gained from our history of providing important medical services to the safety of SEC athletes, staff, referees and officials.”
